2017 Legislative Update #12

Indiana Society of Anesthesiologists

April 15, 2017

State lawmakers are heading into the final week of the 2017 General Assembly with several of the session's major issues still unresolved. Although legislative leaders have targeted Friday (April 21) as the date for adjournment sine die, there is a possibility that session could spill over into both Friday and Saturday. At this point, road funding remains the major roadblock to a Friday adjournment, with House Republicans seeking to accelerate the flow of gas tax revenue to construction projects while the ever-cautious Senate GOP waves the yellow flag.

Last week, fiscal leaders received a relatively upbeat revenue forecast that estimated the state would have approximately $200 million more to spend in the upcoming biennium than predicted last December. However, Senate Appropriations chairman Luke Kenley cautions that the predicted increase does not provide sufficient buffer to cover the loss to the state general fund if 100% of the gas tax is siphoned off next year and directed toward road and bridge construction.

As the session draws to a close, most Statehouse observers believe that the remaining issues will fall into place once the road funding question is resolved. This includes funding for pre-kindergarten, with the $10 million annual increase sought by Governor Holcomb and House Republicans whittled down to $4 million by Senate Republicans. K-12 funding also remain a point of contention, with the House and Senate divided on the amount of funding that should be directed toward high-poverty schools and teacher bonuses.

Following are summaries of bills of interest to ISA that passed both chambers and are eligible for final action.
